PHIL BRENNER EXPECTS TO RETURN TO PHILADELPHIA

Phil Brenner will go hence. He is now closing out his stock of jewelry at private and auction sale, and as soon after everything is sold as possible, he will dispose of his store fixtures, give up his lease and leave town. Mr. Brenner goes back to his home near Philadelphia to embark in the scrap iron business.

Mr. Brenner has been a resident of Monessen for the past eleven years. He has been in the jewelry business at the same stand for the past eight years, and during his stay here, both he and Mrs Brenner have made hosts of friends who regret to see them leave town, but who will hope they will benefit by the change.

Phil Brenner

Mr. Brenner has always kept a first class line of jewelry and upon entering business, he built up a good trade and did a nice business until the industrial depression struck the town and people began to curtail their purchases in his line. A few weeks ago he decided to sell out and devote his time to a business he believes will be far more profitable, and he arranged with his folks at home for an interest in their business and made arrangements to leave.

His big clearance sale has been inaugurated in order to dipose of every article in the store. The stock will be sold at fabulously low prices and many bargains can be picked up. Holiday gifts can be bought and laid away and useful articles provided for the home. The sale is a bonafide one and whether you buy at the auction or at private sale, you will be well repaid by a visit to the store for opportunities of this kind do not appear every day.

Permit Was Refused

At a special meeting of council last night that body went on record as opposing the changing or destroying of any part of the Third street bridge as requested by Louis Larguire, an abutting property owner. If Mr. Larguire is dissatisfied with this decision, his redress lies in a court decision.

CHARGED WITH DRUNKENESS

Joe Hornack was charged before the burgess this morning with being drunk and disorderly. Last evening he went to his home on Seneca street and told his wife that he wanted his supper, and because he did not get it as soon as he thought he should, he threw a chair at her. She screamed and a son came to her assistance and pushed the father over. The son then left the house and the father secured a poker and started after him. When asked if he intended to hit him, he said he would have done so, had he caught him. The police were called and put him under arrest. The burgess fined him $5.00 and costs or $7.00 or five days to street work. He had to take the sentence as his wife refused to pay the fine.

Daniel Finn of Woodlawn strolled into town yesterday to try to land a job. Unfortunately he met some friends who treated him too kindly and the result was that Daniel landed in the police station. This morning he promised to get out of town if he was discharged so he was granted his freedom.

John J. Smith of Bentleyville, was the next one up before the burgess, being charged with feeling too gay after he had supplied himself with a load of tanglefoot. He was discharged and told to get out of town.

The Local Option Vote As Recorded Yesterday

The vote on the Williams county local option bill was taken in the lower house at Harrisburg yesterday afternoon at 3:15, too late for the results to appear in yesterday's issue of the Independent. The vote stood 78 for the bill and 128 against it. This shows a decided loss for the drys over a similar bill two years ago at which time the vote was 83 dry and 121 wet.

Gov. Martin G. Brumbaugh made the fight for the drys and used every means at his command to carry the bill through the house and the local option adherents believed from the enthusiasm at the committee hearing that they had won the day. The five Westmoreland county members voted for the bill, but of Allegheny county's 24 members, 20 voted against the bill. Philadelphia county has 41 members and 36 voted against the bill, and the remainder of the dry vote came from the smaller counties of the state.

Gov. Brumbaugh now threatens to carry his fight back to the people in the year 1916 and has declared he will stump the state in the interest of the issue.

N. W. SCHLUP DRY GOODS STORE WILL BE ENLARGED

Mammoth extensions are being planned for the N. W. Schlup dry goods store. Mr. Schlup left yesterday for New York where he will remain several days purchasing some late spring styles which will be on display at his store. After he is through with his shopping, Mr. Schlup expects to study architectural designs with regard to store arrangements and immediately upon his return home, he will have plans prepared for re-arranging and enlarging his store. The room now occupied by the Homann shoe store is to be made a part of the store proper. The two lower rooms will be thrown together, making a floor space of 44x100 feet on the ground floor. The second floor is the same size.

The whole interior will undergo changes that will convert it into a shopping emporium second to none in this section. The walls will be redecorated and painted throughout. Mr. Schlup will add many new lines to his already well stocked store.

Mr. Schlup came here from Pittsburg in 1911, succeeding the Skelley dry goods concern. He has kept up with the town since becoming one of its business men. He has kept pace with its growth and enterprise and when his improvements are made, he will have one of the big stores of the valley. He is an agreeable gentleman, and the kind of a man that deserves the success with which he has met. He is on the right road.

GRUESOME FIND ON BANKS OF MONONGAHELA RIVER

A gruesome discovery was made this morning by A. A. White, a railroad man while on his way to work, on the river bank opposite the brewery. Just as he landed on this side of the river, his eyes fell upon a human form that had been washed to the water's edge. A closer investigation revealed a badly decomposed body. The police department was at once notified of the find and word was sent to Deputy Coroner H. W. Day. A party went to the river bank and made an examination of the body. Indications are that the man has been dead four of five months. He was apparently about 42 years of age, of foreign birth, dark complected and was a laborer of some kind, probably a miner. He wore a heavy mustache and weighed about 155 pounds. The body will be buried some time today at the expense of the county.

Later—The body was identified this afternoon as that of John Telago by his brother who came here from Donora. The man was employed at Page mill and disappeared February 25.

OLYMPIC THEATRE

Today "A Fool There Was" in six reels. This is the only production in the world which has been repeated two and three and as high as six times in the same house in the same town or city. Our patrons certainly will miss a great picture if they let this opportunity pass. It proves once and for ever woman's control, or better say triumph over man. It looks as if it is a bitter dose to man, but it is true. So man must take his medicine coolly. "Kiss me fool, kiss me," the woman says. At the Olympic today. 1t

Buick

Have you ever seen a horse laboring under a load that a team ought to be hauling? You probably have, and you have felt sorry for the horse. A real driver feels just as sorry for a loboring motor.

Over-exertion is wearing.

Horses can't stand up under it. Men break down under it. Machinery goes to pieces.

Conservation means money in your pocket. Conservation in motor cars means power and plenty of it.

Buick Power

Is the boast of every Buick owner. A Buick can go anywhere any car can and many places where others can't. The famous Buick overhead valve motor is guaranteed to have more power and more speed than any other type of motor on the market.

Buick Reliability

A Buick will always take you anywhere you want to go, and will always bring you back.

Buick Durability

You can drive your Buick 150,000 miles and spend less for repairs than you would on some cars that have run less than 10,000 miles.

Buick Economy

You can get more mileage to a gallon of gasoline with a Buick than you can with any other car ever made.

Buick Service

Buick Service is backed by the biggest automobile building concern in the world. You can always get parts, and you can get them quick. Where there's life there's always the Buick sign, and the Buick sign is always a sign of good treatment.

Here is another statement which we back with our integrity and every dollar behind this organization—there is not a single part of the 1915 BUICK car that is not as good or better than the same part which we used in 1914 and in many instances the design has been improved and the quality bettered.

Many new features have been added, and BUICK today offers greater value than ever before—at a lower price. Greater demand and increased output makes this possible. Some of the improvements are.

The latest DELCO System of starting, lighting and ignition, which has increased generating capacity of 35 per cent and the automatic spark advance.

TUNGSTEN STEEL-VAIVES.

Carburetor supplied by Stewart-Wagner gravity feed vacuum system.

Controls located on instrument board on cowl.

CAR OF THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Ask the Hupmobile Dealer

Ask him why he continues to sell the Hupmobile year after year.

He will tell you: "Because the Hupmobile grows better year after year."

He is not afraid to meet any man to whom he has sold a Hupmobile.

His customers last year, are his customers this year.

And better than that—they are his friends, as well as his customers.

They go out of their way to help him make Hupmobile sales.

From twenty-five to fifty per cent of his new buyers, come, he will tell you, from the recommendations of old friends.

He does not hesitate to refer to them—they do not hesitate to endorse the Hupmobile.

Do you know of another car of which this is so widely, so enthusiastically, true?

Where the average man buys one car, the Hupmobile dealer buys scores, or even hundreds.

He pays his money for these cars, the same as you pay for yours.

He had to be sold on the Hupmobile before he would make this investment, the same as you have to be sold.

The Hupmobile dealer, naturally, is prejudiced in favor of the Hupmobile.

But isn't that very prejudice—that extreme enthusiasm—the strongest endorsement you could ask?

If he has held the friendship of his Hupmobile owners through all these years, he will hold your friendship, too.

What is true of Hupmobile dealers generally is true of us. Let us show you the 1915 Hupmobile.

CHANCE FOR ALL TO SEE WOMAN'S LIBERTY BELL

Route Planned Will Carry Suffrage Symbol Over the Entire State

Practically every man, woman and child in the State is to have an opportunity to see the Woman's Liberty Bell during its 5,000 mile tour through the 67 counties this summer. Lashed securely to a big motor truck, the bell is to be started on its travels at Towanda, Bradford county, on May 15th. From there it will travel westward through the northern tier of counties, and thence in a southwesterly direction to Pittsburgh.

The bell will be the feature of the big Fourth of July suffrage parade in Pittsburgh and will then be taken in a zigzag route up and down the State, reaching Philadelphia on the Saturday before election in time for a big night demonstration of the Quaker City suffragists.

A corps of speakers will travel with the bell and explain the justice of the woman's plea for the ballot, which their Liberty Bell symbolizes. According to present plans, the bell will be on tour exactly 24 weeks covering between 20 and 30 miles a day.

In discussing the bell tour at the recent county conference of the Woman Suffrage party, the representatives of every county agreed to have delegations of suffragists meet the bell party at the county line and escort it to the county seat. There, another delegation will join forces with them and accompany the bell over to the next county. In this way the trip of the Woman's Liberty Bell will be one continuous demonstration for suffrage from one end of the State to the other.

A HUSBAND'S CONFESSION

Yesterday Mirandy voted.
But so far I haven't noted
That she's sprouted any whiskers or adopted trouserettes.
And she hasn't indicated
Since she got emancipated
That she means to start out raiding with a bunch of suffragettes.

Took her half an hour to do it,
An' as soon as she was through it,
She went hustling home without a stop to scrub the pantry floor;
Cooked the dinner, did some baking,
Trimmed a dress that she was making,
Mended socks and got the ironing all done by half past four.

She appears to be as able
To keep victuals on the table
And to keep the moths from feeding on my go-to-meeting coat—
Just as handy with the baby
(Or a little more so, maybe!—
As she was before they told her women ought to have the vote.

Far as I have observed Mirandy,
She is just as fond of candy
And as keen to read the fashions and the daily household hints
As before she was my "equal."
And—however strange the sequel—
I've been just a trifle prouder of Mirandy ever since!

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

What does a name on an automobile mean to you?

What does it stand for?

What does it represent?

Do you believe in a car simply because it is stamped with a certain name, or because that name represents fixed ideals, or certain policies or particular methods, or a unique plan of construction.

What does the name Apperson mean to you?

Do you not immediately associate it with the pioneering days of the automobile industry?

Does it not recall to you the achievements of Elmer and Edgar Apperson?

Elmer and Edgar Apperson will never do it.

They say it isn't the safest way to build good automobiles—it does not mean lasting satisfaction to the owner.

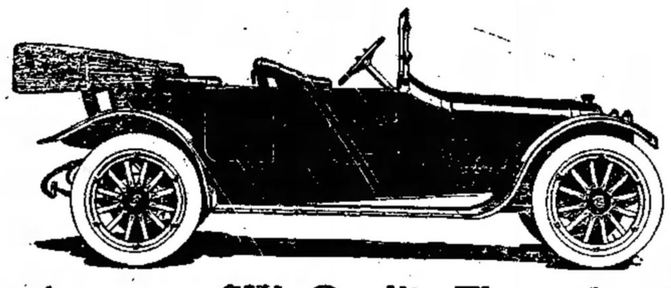
And the conservative buyer doesn't want that sort of an automobile, anyway.

You don't buy the cheapest suit of clothes, do you?

You don't build the cheapest house?

You don't buy the cheapest piano.

And in the same light of reasoning, the Apperson is offered to the discriminating buyer because it represents a true mechanical basis. And with it is incorporated safety, grace, beauty, refinement, convenience and economy.



The New Apperson SIX. Quality Throughout $1485

Does the name not bring to your mind the fact that these two men "blazed the way" and that they have been leaders in automobile progress since the foundation of the industry?

Do you know that these men built the first successful American gasoline automobile—the first double opposed motor—the first side door motor car—the first car with a float feed carburetor—the first car with electric ignition—the car that won the first speed contest?

Apperson Brothers have been actively engaged in the automobile business for twenty-two years.

And the name always stood for honest motor car construction.

The Apperson name has never appeared on an inferior motor car.

They have never built a car to sell at a certain price.

And sold at a price consistent with the quality of the car.

We have a right to say all this because—we know of the high order of material used and the method of construction employed.

Apperson cars are made in our shops.

Every unit of any importance is made here. We make the motor, clutch, transmission, front and rear axle and many other things.

The Apperson is one of the safe cars to buy—and you should investigate the various models if you are interested in automobiles.

Your investigation will lead to your purchase; of this we are sure. See today the Model you contemplate buying.

The Apperson line consists of Fours and Sixes. An ideal Four at $1,350, a five pasenger Six at $1,485, a seven passenger Six at $1,585, and a DeLuxe Six at $2,200.

BUNKOED BY A GREEK

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The pair of us had been in Athens three or four days when a party of English excursionists who were making a tour arrived. Among them was an antiquary who was looked up to and respected for his knowledge of ancient history and ruins.

Professor Himstead, as he was named, had been charged to pick up all the old Greek manuscripts to be had for money, and it was his inquiries for such documents that doubtless led to our undoing. One day a man named Talanti, who had somewhat the manners and dress of a gentleman, brought the professor two ancient manuscripts as a present, and to show his further good will he announced a valuable discovery which had just been made on the island of Aegina, about forty miles distant. He was the owner of the island, and while his workmen were getting out some stone they had come across some rare treasures in art, but had developed only a small portion of them. They had partly uncovered a stone box which he believed held a large number of manuscripts and valuable coins, but he had delayed the opening of it that some of his friends might be present. Three or four of them were going to his island home tomorrow, and he would be glad to have on his yacht as many of us foreigners go along as could make it convenient.

Aside from the English party, there were Americans, Germans and Frenchmen to the number of twenty in Athens, and when the list was made up we numbered over forty, of whom ten were ladies. When we went on board there was considerable surprise at finding her the craft she was. She was nothing more than a trader, and her accommodations were of a primitive character.

My friend the professor could speak Greek, but when he entered into conversation with Mr. Talanti's friends he found them sulky enough. This excited our surprise, as they were supposed to be gentlemen. When we came to look them over we began to get a little suspicious.

As we approached the island we saw it was fairly covered with trees, yet it did not have a hospitable look. As we made a close approach we could see a couple of rude huts and a primitive jetty, but Mr. Talanti explained that his castle was hidden by the forest and that he was landing at that point to save us a long walk.

As soon as the craft was made fast the three eminent friends of Mr. Talanti suddenly produced pistols and knives and took their station by the gangway. The sailors divided into two parties, and, handling their naked knives in a menacing fashion, they drove the people into line.

When Professor Himstead had rubbed his eyes, scratched his head and got it into his brain that something not down on the program was going on Talanti mounted a box and smilingly observed:

"Ladies and gentlemen, you are now about to pass ashore to behold my wonderful discoveries, but each one of you is required to leave all money and jewelry behind you. I will see that everything is safely cared for!"

The men cried out in anger, but what could they do? I do not think there was a firearm among them, while the Greeks seemed overanxious to use their knives. There were protestations and threats of the law, but Talanti only smiled at them and ordered the work to go on. Each man in the crowd was regularly held up—that is, his pockets were thoroughly searched and everything of value taken. The women were requested to hand over, and each one had her watch and rings in hand as she moved up. In the course of half an hour every one was ashore, and then Talanti took off his hat, made a sweeping bow and sailed away with his piratical crew. He had no sooner gone than half a dozen villainous looking men came down from the hut.

They told us they were fishermen, but their actions belied their statement. Their first move was to demand cash, and great was their indignation and disappointment at being told that Talanti's crowd had taken the last coin. When sure of this they left us, and an hour later two genuine fishermen came ashore in their boat. There were a dozen vessels within five or six miles of us, and a dollar would have been big pay for them to go out and notify the nearest one of our situation; but, realizing our helplessness, they demanded the sum of $100.

It was almost dark when a battered old schooner came sailing up to take us off, and the terms were $2 a piece, to be paid in Athens. We spent a dreary night on deck and landed in the city at noon next day. Immediately notice was given to the various consuls and to the Greek government, but no one had any faith that anything would be accomplished. The government made loud promises and seemed to be making all possible efforts; but, as a matter of fact, Mr. Talanti was not even pursued. He never could have put up such a job without a number of officials standing in with him, and each and every one of them doubtless shared in the plunder when it was divided. It was said that the money and jewelry amounted to about $6,000, and the only consolation any of the victims had was the privilege of abusing a country where such things could be carried out.

MONTANA WON OVER BY PROSPERITY OF SUFFRAGE IDAHO

Treasure State Granted Women Vote Because Figures Proved It Helped Progress

An illuminating comparison between Idaho, a State which has had woman suffrage for nineteen years, and Montana, which has had it less than a year, is the best reply suffragists can make to the arguments of the opponents of equal suffrage who declare that disastrous results follow the granting of votes to women. The two states lie side by side, with no marked difference of climate, resources, occupations, or type of population. Both are frontier States with mining as the chief industry. Idaho has had woman suffrage since 1896, Montana secured it at the last election, so that her figures are those of a nonsuffrage State.

In 1890 Idaho's population was 48,385; Montana's 122,159. In 1910 Idaho's population was 325,594. Montana's 376,052; percentage of increase for Idaho nearly 300 per cent. for Montana less than 200 per cent. The assessed value of property in Idaho in 1913 was $422,000,000; in Montana in 1912, $341,000,000. Percentage of homes owned in Idaho 71.6 per cent; in Montana 56.6 per cent. Road appropriations in Idaho in 1915, $250,000; in Montana in 1915, $10,000. Saloons in Idaho, 195; in Montana, 2,563 Convicts in Idaho in 1910, 287; in Montana, 963. Paupers in Idaho in 1910, 97; in Montana, 415. Legislators, per diem, in Idaho, $5; in Montana, $10. Illiteracy in Idaho, 2.2 per cent; in Montana, 4.3 per cent. With these figures staring her in the face, Montana decided last election day to start her women voting.

Local Option Lost

Down at Harrisburg yesterday the representatives expressed themselves on the local option question. The fight that was waged to change the men who were elected by a constituency back at home and who were pledged to the issue was not effective. It is hard work to change a man after the lines have been drawn when he was elected. It is little else than dictatorial to take a man who has been elected to office on a platform and try to change his vote when he has a pledge out with the people.

Human nature resents a brow beat, it resents a coersion and it resents dictatorial and high handed methods to accomplish an end. No matter what the issue when it comes as great as the liquor question, men have opinions of their own. You can sometimes change them by reason and education, but never by threats. The threats made that the fight would be carried back into the home district of every representative, did the local option question no good. The liquor question is an old one. The father of the writer was troubled with it in his days. He argued it over the fence with his neighbor. The state wide Prohibition amendment was voted on in 1889 and men fought about it and they quibbled and carried sore spots. In 1875 Westmoreland county had a liquor fight, and while the county went dry, the state voted wet and the measure was later repealed. People became excited at that time as they are doing now, but still the liquor question has not been settled. The issue gains momentum in one campaign and loses it in the next. It is lost by the means adopted to carry it and to influence others When it is settled, it will be settled by compromise, after deliberation and thought, and not by forcing or driving people.

A Useless Fight

When big bosses who have been trotting in the same harness fall out, the people can expect that secrets will come to light. The libel suit of Barnes and Roosevelt now on trial in New York is a disgrace. Not only is it a disgrace to the men who are quibbling over nothing, but it is a disgrace to this country that an ex-President gets into so many law suits in order to protect himself. As long as a man is a public man, he is going to be criticized, even scored and the constitution of the United States gives the press the inalienable right to go after public officials. The bigger they are the harder they have to be fought. The constitution says "Congress shall make no law abridging the freedom of speech or of the press." We have a copy of that constitutional declaration in our office to guide us in our editorial duties and we are not afraid of the biggest, awkwardest and strongest human being that ever walked if he gets into office and needs the reflector turned on him. Libel suits in this country don't amount to anything. Few verdicts have ever been returned where it could be shown that there was no malice, and a writer doesn't very often write maliciously.

Roosevelt and Barnes have been in politics. They have both needed criticism and the fellow who twinges under it is a coward, nothing more and nothing less. Roosevelt likes to throw out hot shots and he ought to take them when they come back. Whatever the outcome of this fight, there will be no change in the public opinion of the two men. It won't deprive the people of the right to think and know and utter. These are the dearest of all liberties and with such liberties there can be no slavery. The law won't curb the press under the constitution whether Barnes or Roosevelt wins.

Didn't Know She Was He

"That Amazonian spear-bearer in pink tights—the one with the big calves and the No. 1 slipper—usually the second from the end in the chorus of "The Broadway Beauties" today stands exposed as a man with a double barreled voice—one as soft and sweet as angel food and the other like that of a metropolitan truck driver."

The above is a news dispatch sent out from New York. It spells defeat for the burlesque career of Leon Pols who had gone under the name of Leona Pols. He swayed thousands of audiences with his she acting. He responded to applause as she, and in fact would do anything the he's wanted him to but make dates after the show. No one ever made a date with Leona.

This story is no fake. Strange as it may seem, the feminine act in burlesque is very often played by a man. It might be a give away to state that a burlesque that appeared in Monessen the past season had as one of its star performer a man. He swayed the men with his vulgar acting. He responded to encores as she and had the men going. Some of them followed him to a neighboring town and went wild with his acting of her part and they didn't know it. Of course it's all over now and they enjoyed the show just as well as if they had known it. What people don't know, doesn't hurt them.

Body Needs Rest

Does a girl who stands behind the counter all day feel like doing a day's work when she gets home in the evening? Does a man who labors all day in the mill, mine, factory or store feel like doing another day's work after he arrives home in the evening? If either feel like doing anything they feel like going out into the open air and doing some light work on the lawn or in the garden or out of doors any place.

After a day's grind at any kind of work, the human body needs rest. It needs to build up the broken down tissues, and if the wear of the day is not mended, there is bound to be a break some time some place. Now mother, if your daughter works all day in a down town store or office, don't expect her to do the washing or ironing or baking at night. Wife, if your husband works hard in the mill or in the shop, in the office, mine or factory, don't ask him to come home and do a day's work in the house when he ought to be in bed. Of course if he insists on going to the club every night, you needn't have so much mercy on him. But rest or recreation after the day's work is needed for every human body.

Many Automobile Agencies

This issue of the Independent is alive with automobile advertising It not only shows that this is an automobile age, but it convinces prospective purchasers of cars that they can get most any kind of a car and at any price they want to pay from a reliable agent almost at their own door. This is gratifying news. Most any person would rather buy a car from a man he knows than an entire stranger. In automobiles more than any other line, people ought to deal at home. They ought to purchase from somebody they know An automobile is a piece of machinery and it is something used a long time. While styles change it goes without saying that there are few people who expect to get an automobile every time they change the appearance. An automobile is a thing that is kept as long as it will run. In looking over the advertisements in this issue it will not be a hard matter to select a car no matter what price the customer wishes to pay. All the dealers are responsible parties. The question of who to buy from is up to the buyer.

Bull Mooser Hampers Roads

How many people in this state think A. W. Powell a competent Auditor General? How many people would vote for him if he were to announce for another office? Of course that's a matter that remains to be seen. By his reform tactics he has hampered highway construction in the state for more than a year only to be given a jolt by the Supreme court. The highway department demanded the money in the state treasury for automobile license to prosecute road work, but Powell held up the money and thus hampered road construction. Powell may have gratified his own political desires, but in the face of the decision of the Supreme court, it's a cinch his attitude was not very commendable in the eyes of the people. He's a bull moose official.

Raising Funds For Monument

Washington, April 21—Through Elihu Root, the retired senator from New York and other Republican leaders, funds for a monument are being raised in honor of Hinton Rowan Helper, whose book on the slavery question shook the nation in ante-bellum days, and served as a campaign document for the election of Abraham Lincoln to the presidency. Helper was a close student of human affairs. He made a fortune in the gold mines on the coast, but dissipated it all in the project of building a railroad from the Bering Strate to the Strate of Magellan. He had a part of the route surveyed, and his pet scheme was a through railroad through North and South America. He died unknown in Washington, and now the Republican leaders are raising the funds for a monument to be placed over his grave.

Re-appointed Road Engineer

Cunningham and Mr. Robbins respecting the work that is to be done inthis end of the state. Engineer Robbins was in Greensburg Monday evening looking after some details in regard to repairs now in progress on the road between South Greensburg and Youngwood. A force of men has been at work on the stretch of road for more than a week, and it is being put in passable shape.

Doings in the World of Sport

Junior High School base ball league was opened at Electric park yesterday with 7B and 8B as the opposing teams. When Mike Kiseda the umpire said "Play ball" there were a large number of rooters on hand, mostly classmates of the players. The teams as well as the rooters displayed fighting spirit that is not surpassed even in the big leagues. The fair sex were out with as much interest and enthusiasm as the other rooters.

Both teams were confident of victory with odds in favor of 8B who were probably too confident. All who were there witnessed a rattling good game, which was in doubt until the last man was retired. The fighting spirit and gameness combined with the excellent pitching of "Joe" Yoney made 7B aggregation 13 to 7.

The up hill fight put up by 7B showed the teams gameness. With the score against them they did not lose heart, but faced John Badzik and Capt. Allison, the 8B twirlers who were treated very kind by the 7B sluggers.

Both teams played good ball and all the players deserve praise for their playing and conduct on the field, not one kick being registered against the umpire.

The pitching of Joe Yoney and catching of Octavius Venneri deserve special mention for 7B, while Horn, Capt. Allison and Thomas starred for the 8B. The surprise was almost too much for 8B, and not one could be seen five minutes after the game, while 7B was very much in evidence. Capt. Allison said "We will get them next time."

The score by innings:

8B 6..... 1 3 0 1 1 1 3—10
7B ..... 0 2 1 1 5 4 *—13

Bateries—7B, Young and Venneri; 8B, Badzik, Allison and Thomas; umpire, Kiseda.

The lineup follows:

7B		8B
Venneri	c	A. Thomas
Yoney	p	J.Badzik
Stevenson.....	ss	Magill
Swade	1b	Allison
Karlowsky	2b	Laska
Ondecheck	3b	Farquhar
Mayirnik	lf	..Carnes
Brown, ...	cf	Horn
Maliniak	rf	Schantz

Junior High school has included athletics in their schedule by forming a four club base ball league which includes the following teams. 7B, 7A, 8B and 8A, all under the supervision of Andy White, the football coach. Mr. White formed the league and a schedule was arranged which will extend to the close of the school term.

The interest and enthusiasm being displayed by the various classes insures a very successful season for the league. The first game played between 7B and 8B was played yesterday and everything went just as smooth as if the league was formed months before and this was a mid season game.

Today, Thursday. 7A and 8A will clash and if reports are true. this will be much more hotly contested than the game yesterday. Two games will be played on Tuesday and Thursday of each week. The teams are all evenly matched and the fight for the pennant will all be in the run for the flag.

The Mohawks after their unsuccessful efforts to land a game with any good 14 to 17 year old team, are now scheduled to play the Cubs of this town at Page park, Saturday, April 24th at 2:30 sharp. These two teams have met five times before and the Mohawks have carried away the gravy and expect to carry it away again, but the Cubs have a lot of new material on this year while the Mohawks have but a little.

So all those wishing to see a good game should be there and root for the team with a reputation like the Mohawks. The battery for the Mohawks probably will be Gibson and Wagner, while the opposing battery will be Heavy, Adams or Lefty from Weirton, and the catcher will be Adams. Gibson twirled excellent ball last season, losing but one game and that was to a team with a reputation, the Comits of Charleroi. This team averaged 19 to 21 years, and they had to travel two extra inninge to do it. All players who are to take part in the game are to be at Page park at 1:30 sharp, the Mohawks especially. All good teams wishing games please communicate. Would like to hear from the Crescents of McMahan borough.

President Wilson Licensed to Sell Papers

Washington, D. C., April 22—By courtesy of "Germany" Harrison, "Giggles" McQuinn and the other newsboys of Baltimore, President Wilson has been presented with the right to sell newspapers in Baltimore. Because President Wilson wrote a mighty interesting and helpful letter to the newsboys a week or two ago, telling them that "the right road is the straight road," the boys sent "Giggles" and "Germany" over to the White House from Baltimore to present a badge of the child labor bureau of Baltimore, entitling him to sell newspapers in the Oriole city. President Wilson has assured the boys that if he ever gets hard up, he will not hesitate to join the newsies on the corner.

The President's letter of advice was in part as follows: "i am very glad to hear about the way in which you youngsters are beginning to take care of yourselves and stop the things that you are sure to be sorry for afterward, and I want to send you this message of good will and express the hope that the things you are learning now will make you not only more succesful men, but happier men. The right road is the straight road, and it is the only road that will carry any man where he would care to go, because I am sure that you will feel as I do, that it isn't worth while to go anywhere if you cannot go with honor and self respect. My message is, God bless you and guide you."

MINISTERS OF VALLEY FORM ORGANIZATION

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the First Methodist church of Charleroi, the ministers of the upper Monongahela valley formed a Ministerial Union. The membership consists of all evangelical ministers of the upper Monongahela valley and environs, and is known as the Monongahela Valley Ministerial Association.

The meeting was called to order by Dr. Keller, who has been the moving spirit in bringing the ministers together. The purpose of the organization is for mutual help and assistance. A tentative constitution was read by Rev. Perin Baker of Belle Vernon, and later adopted with appropriate by-laws. The Association will meet quarterly in some of the towns along the river, and the time spent will be devotional, social and educational.

The first meeting will be held in Monessen June 15th, in St .Paul's Lutheran church. The meeting will be called at 10 a. m., and a special sermon delivered by Dr. Baker, after which the time until the noon hour will be spent in devotional services.

The ministers will devote two hours for dinner and social fellowship. At two o'clock they will reassemble, when Dr. Burston of Charleroi, will read a paper, which will be afterwards discussed by the ministers. Dr. Keller was chosen temporary chairman.

The meeting yesterday was attended by at least 50 per cent. of the possible membership and all were unanimous in the need of such an organization, and the plan presented by Dr. Keller was enthusiastically received and generally approved. The organization promises many good things for the ministers, and the first meeting is awaited with much interest.

Hospital Boosters' Scheme

Preparations for the opening of "Ye Old Country Store" in connection with the big hospital boom for support and maintenance are progressing well, and one week from Saturday, May 1, there will be located at the Monessen end of the Charleroi bridge one of the most novel city attractions yet witnessed here. Some of the special announcements in this connection are to be made next week.

It is scarcely necessary to say that the hospital staff, board of directors and ladies' auxiliaries working in the interest of this institution greatly appreciate the reception this idea has met with in the idea of opening a country store at the bridge the first week of May.

As this is the first time a campaign like this has been made, it appears from the encouragement received at both Monessen and Charleroi, as well as surrounding towns, that the 60,000 people the hospital is here to serve in case of necessity or emergency are beginning to appreciate it.

The novel method of advertising, "100,000 Reasons Why" is the topic of conversation on the street and in the stores of the several towns. It appears every merchant, every business man, every citizen will help with the big feature attraction "Ye Old Country Store."

The store will be conducted entirely by the hospital staff, board, members of the Ladies Auxiliaries and assistants. The plan will be announced later.

"What is a Country Store?" Leading merchants will display their goods there. Fiddler contests will be held each evening. The usual spelling bees and sewing circles will prevail. Most every citizen will want to go and meet his friends and neighbors there. The Village Glee club will sing "Two Little Girls in Blue" and "Swanee River."

Very soon this paper will reproduce a picture of what "Ye Old Country Store" will look like, located just to the left of the entrance to the Hunter shows, near the car line

In a Quandry.

In a foothill California district there is a man who runs a small ferry across one of the rivers, charging twenty five cents for one transportation of a single team and forty cents for a double one One afternoon in the early days of automobiling a city man drove up to the ferry in a touring car and attempted to go on to the boat, but was held up by the captain, who told him to wait. Finally, after the boat had crossed the river two or three times, the motorist began to get impatient "Can't take ye over yet," answered the captain in response to the motorist's demands. "Yer the fust one o' them things that ever crossed here, an' I don't know what ter charge ye." "Don't know what to charge me?" "Nope; I've sized ye up fore and aft, an' I'm durned if I know whether to charge ye as a single rig or a double team."—Argonaut.

Chinese Locks.

The earliest locks known to man were of Chinese make. Although it is impossible to tell the exact date of those still extant, they are wonderfully well made and as strong as any manufactured in Europe to the middle of the eighteenth century. The Chinese locksmith of today uses exactly the same kind of tools that his forefathers had, for they are very simple and primitive. He carries all his implements in two cabinets, sitting on one and working at the other. When he has finished all the work available in one neighborhood he fastens the two cabinets to a bamboo rod and slings it over his shoulder. He tramps through the towns burdened in this way and stops when he is called, much as a scissors grinder or umbrella mender does in our country.—Wide World Magazine.

Nicked Arteries.

A "nick" in an artery is sometimes more dangerous than its complete severing, for the coats of arteries are formed of muscular tissue, which contracts, and a slight cut at once expands into a round or oval hole, through which the hemorrhage continues unless the artery be tied. When an artery is completely severed the cut ends tend to turn in and close the tube. In the case of a small artery this closing sometimes needs no assistance. In the case of a larger artery the surgeon ties it at once and thus closes it for good. The New York Medical Journal reports two cases at Lincoln hospital in which hemorrhages broke out over and over again for several weeks in arteries that had only just been nicked and that were finally healed by being tied just as if they had been severed.

Ordinary Ventilation.

Authorities compute that each adult person in a room requires at least thirty cubic feet of fresh air per minute to maintain a fair standard of purity; hence the air changes required per hour primarily depend upon the number of workmen in the shop, together with its cubical contents. If the rooms are large and the workmen few the necessary air changes per hour are lessened, so that this figure depends for its determination upon local conditions. J. Byers Holbrook allows "One change of air per hour for the average type of city building," increasing this allowance for corridors and first floors. Other engineers designate variously from a fraction of one change to as high as three changes per hour for different sets of conditions.—D. M. Myers in Engineering Magazine.

How He Changed His Mind

By EDITH V. ROSS

Miss Luella Denton, an American girl sojourning in England, joined in the work of sending comforts to the soldiers fighting in France and Belgium. Miss Denton on looking over some books she owned selected several novels and took them to the rooms where supplies were being packed. They were sent to France and distributed with other things among the soldiers at the front.

Miss Denton had not noticed that her name was in one of the books. The novel was given to the Foreign legion, composed of all nationalities, except French, and fell into the hands of Private Joseph Wilkins, an American youth who happened to be in Paris at the breaking out of the war and had enlisted in that corps.

One day when Private Wilkins was some seven or eight feet underground, getting tired of listening to shells screeching over his head, he saw a book lying on the bottom of the trench and took it up. Listlessly opening it, on a flyleaf he read written in pencil "Luella Denton."

If peace had been declared Wilkins could not have been more astonished. A year before in Miss Denton's home in America he had proposed to her. She had considered his proposition for three days, then turned him down.

The young soldier was not interested in the novel further than that it had come from Miss Denton. Indeed, he did not read a word of it. He was expecting at any minute to be killed, and one in such condition is not apt to give his attention to reading. Nevertheless he formed a resolution to write to Miss Denton a letter from an unknown grateful soldier. Might he not still win her by correspondence?

Fortunately for his plan Miss Denton had left a card between the leaves which she had used as a bookmark, with a London address on it. It was possible that this address was that of Mrs. Denton. At any rate, when Wilkins found the means to write and send a letter he used the address on the card. He took care to disguise his handwriting and sign an assumed name.

One morning Miss Denton received an epistle from a soldier in the trenches thanking her for the great relief afforded him by the novel she had sent. He assured her that it was just the thing needed to divert his mind from death, which continually stared him in the face. Would she not write him a letter? Whenever the danger was most appalling he would read it, and he was sure it would draw his thoughts from a constant presence of death.

Now, Miss Denton was a romantic young woman and had refused Wilkins on the ground that she could not love one so matter of fact. She was well pleased to have given comfort to a soldier who was constantly exposed to death. She wrote a long letter to the poor man, mainly composed of such items as were to be found in the newspapers, addressing it to his corps in France. It reached his company, and he had notified the mail distributer that the name it bore had been assumed by him.

Wilkins was delighted. He wrote again, dwelling on the comfort her letter had given him. Whenever a shell burst over his head, he said, or a comrade was killed beside him he felt that he would go insane from the continuance of such horrors. At such times he read her letter, and it always brought back his nerve. To preserve it he had placed it in a tin cigarette box and kept it in his left pocket. A fragment of a shell had struck him over the heart and had been turned aside by the metal. Her letter had saved his life.

Wilkins had no opportunity to receive or write another letter, for in a bayonet charge he was wounded and as soon as possible sent across the channel. He was finally removed to London and not long after arriving there wrote Miss Denton, informing her of his condition and asking if she would not further add to his comfort by coming to see him at the hospital where he lay.

Luella collected a large basket full of delicacies and betook herself to the hospital. Joe had given his assumed name to a nurse, requesting that if any one asked for that person he was the one wanted. Then came Luella with her basket on her arm and her romantic heart beating wildly at the prospect of meeting her unknown soldier. When she was taken up to Joe's bed so pale and thin was he that she failed to recognize him.

"Luella!" he said in a choked voice.

The sound of her name, spoken in a familiar voice, caused her to look more intently in his face, and she recognized in the poor soldier the man she had refused.

"Oh, Joe!" she exclaimed, and, kneeling beside his cot, she took his hand in hers.

Joe told her that when he saw her name in the book she had sent he did not feel justified in writing her direct after her refusal of him, but, desiring the comfort she might give a stranger, had written her incognito. Naturally she took pity on him, for he had been badly wounded and was the shadow of his former self. So she nursed him back to comparative health. But the surgeons agreed that it would require a long time to make him fit for the field again, and he was discharged.

He and Luella were married in London and returned to America.

Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of Monessen residents? After you have read the following, quietly answer the question.

Mrs. W. Koerner, 119 Knox avenue, Monessen, says: "I had a bad fall which injured my back. I suffered from a constant pain across my loins and in the morning I was always worse. If I stooped over a sharp pain caught me and I could not straighten. The secretions from my kidneys were unnatural and caused me annoyance I didn't rest well and rheumatic pains made it hard for me to get about. I was often so lame that I had to sit on cushions and I had puffy sacks beneath my eyes. I doctored and tried different medicines, but got no relief. Two boxes of Doans Kidney Pills, procured at the Hirsch Drug Co. drove most of the trouble away. I take this medicine off and on as a kidney tonic and it keeps me in good health."

When Billy Sunday Came to Town

By ALEXANDER CORKEY

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fly Co.

SYNOPSIS.

Reginald Nelson, a young Englishman of high birth, comes to this country to win fame and fortune On the steamer he meets Albert Townley, a minister, Mrs. Graham and her pretty daughter, Joy.

Reginald goes to Bronson, home of his three new acquaintances, where he learns that Joy's father is a leading lawyer, who is the mainstay of a corrupt political ring He gets a job

The young Englishman enters the social life of Bronson He falls in love with Joy, and later discovers that she is engaged to be married to Roland Gregory.

Allan Rutledge, another minister, and the Rev Mr Townley confer on the evil moral and laboring conditions in Bronson The reform element meets and decides to have Billy Sunday, the noted evangelist aid in a "cleanup"

Editor Marchmount offers Reginald a position on his paper. The latter accepts and later he performs a heroic act in stopping a dangerous runaway.

Nelson starts on his work on the Courier He begins to investigate the suspicious death of Mae Mobray, a youthful worker in Roland Gregory's factory plant. The councilmen and saloon keepers oppose the coming of Billy Sunday

A tabernacle is built for Billy Sunday and Reginald, in the columns of the Courier, begins a spirited campaign in favor of the evangelist. Sunday holds his first meeting in Bronson

He strode up the aisle toward the platform, unbuttoning his overcoat as he walked Ascending a short stairway, he pulled off his overcoat, threw it on a chair and walked to the center of the rostrum where the pulpit stand had been placed. He was the instant focus for 22,000 eyes as he stood there leaning against the stand. Although past forty years of age, he looked still younger, and his figure seemed small and slight against the background of the thousand voiced choir But Reginald had noticed the confident air with which he ascended the platform and the athletic pose of the man as he stood facing the audience. He could see the strong, determined face, the swift glance of the flashing eye and the physical vigor which in former days had made him the fleetest base runner in all America.

Rescue the perishing, duty demands it;
Strength for the labor the Lord will provide.
Back to the narrow way patiently win them,
Tell the poor wand'rer a Savior has died.

The words of the closing verse of Fannie J Crosby's world famed hymn

"We need to begin these meetings right."

rang out louder than the previous verses, the audience and choir seeming to welcome the evangelist with their song and desiring him to know how hearty was their greeting.

The music ceased, and an intense stillness pervaded the tabernacle. Waiting a moment until the hush became deeper, Mr. Sunday said. "My friend, Dr. Allan Rutledge, will lead us in prayer."

The great audience bowed reverently, and the Iowa minister arose from the group of ministers seated at one side of the platform and walked to the side of the evangelist.

"Let us pray," he said simply, and then began the opening invocation.

There were literally thousands present that evening to whom sacred worship was something strange, but all listened to the prayer of the pastor of the Central church, and thousands added their silent "Amen" to his earnest petitions for God's help in the mighty conflict which was to be waged in the following weeks in Bronson.

After the prayer another hymn was announced, and the chorus leader again took charge.

An offering was taken to defray the expenses of erecting the tabernacle and heating and lighting it, the evangelist declaring that these offerings would be taken up for a week or two until all the money needed for the expenses of the campaign were raised.

"Remember, this is not a tabernickel!" he exclaimed "Make the offering a good one, as we want to get these collections out of the way as soon as possible."

Announcements were made of the various prayer meetings morning by morning and of the plans for shop meetings and other special gatherings from time to time

Then the evangelist began his opening sermon. It was brief, pointed, practical and altogether informal

"We'll just get acquainted tonight," he declared, with the smile on his face which soon became familiar to his auditors "I am here to help you. I want to do my part in building up God's kingdom on earth, and if God can build his kingdom better with me in my coffin I won't kick Let God's kingdom come, no matter what the consequences may be.

"We will make a good deal of singing in this campaign," he continued "There is great virtue in song Great revivals never come without song Song is the ennobling element that contributes to successful religious awakenings Song and revivals are inseparable. I don't mean the kind that takes the diaphram exercises to produce," here illustrating in a vivid way the gyrations that singers of classical and high class music usually go through There was considerable laughter among the audience.

"That's right," commented Mr. Sunday 'You don't need to be afraid of laughing in my meetings There is no command of God 'Thou shalt not laugh,' but some people think they are not religious unless their faces are as long as a horse's face."

The audience was getting on friendly terms with the speaker and he continued in a more earnest tone.

"We need a revival of the old time religion in Bronson, and I am going to preach the old gospel. I am an old fashioned preacher, of the old fashioned gospel that has warmed this old world for years, the gospel of Calvary, of salvation and of atonement.

"We need to begin these meetings right," exclaimed the speaker. "If you want a revival of religion to come to Bronson you just take a piece of chalk and draw a circle around yourself and ask the Lord to begin inside that circle"

Here Mr Sunday showed how to do it, using a genuine piece of chalk and making a ring with it in the brussels carpet which covered the platform.

"Think of the drunkenness, the misery, the lust, the gambling and the sin in Bronson,' he shouted. "Think of the vice, the want and the squalor; think of the mountains of guilt in this city. They will not move easily. You've got to pray This is a cause to demand human laborers, and I say it reverently, if God can't get human agents to do his work it will go undone."

He also chided inconsistent church members with their failures to live the right kind of lives before the world.

"The bad sermons people preach with their lives,' he proclaimed, "overrate the influence of good sermons from the pulpit. You pray one day and cheat somebody in a horse trade the next day. I can tell more about your religion by trading horses with you on Thursday than by hearing you yell 'Amen!' in the prayer meeting on Wednesday night."

There were a number of the eager listeners who nodded their heads at this saying, and Billy noticed it at once.

"That's right," he declared, "you know I am telling you the truth. I have come to Bronson to speak the truth, and I will speak it. You have a gang here, I know, for there is a gang in every town, but I am not afraid of them. I never back pedaled for any gang yet, and I never will."

This emphatic statement was greeted with applause, and George Caldwell just happened to glance out into the audience and saw Bud McCrea sitting near a side door not far from the front. The dark scowl on McCrea's face as he heard the evangelist bid defiance to the gang was plainly visible.

The speaker walked up and down the platform as he continued:

"I knew a man down in Illinois who used to yell 'Amen!' at the prayer meetings and paid his washerwoman 50 cents for doing the washing. One day he invited her to dinner, and then the miserable old scalawag docked her 25 cents for the dinner when it came to pay for the washing A little later during a revival meeting the old skinflint scoundrel had the nerve to go up to the woman and ask her to be a Christian.

"You go to the devil!" was the reply she gave him, and I don't wonder at it."

Reginald Nelson listened with growing interest to the kind of gospel which Mr Sunday had come to proclaim in Bronson, and as he heard this story he said to himself, "If he keeps on in that way Billy will get me into the ranks before he is through."

"Listen to me, men and women!" cried the evangelist as he drew his sermon to a close. "You cannot serve God and mammon A lot of you church members try to prove God a liar right there. You go to the theater on Tuesday night, to the prayer meeting on Wednesday night, to a dance Thursday night and to a card party on Friday night, and then on Sunday morning you go to church and occupy a space seventeen inches square."

The end of the sermon was abrupt

"I have a lot of things to say to you people the next five or six weeks," he declared. "I will have some tobasco sauce for some of you and hot cayenne pepper for others, but I have good fodder as well, and by the help of God we'll save some souls in Bronson"

He pulled out his watch and exclaimed "Why, it's twenty minutes after 9! That's enough for tonight. Good night!"

He walked from the stand over to the chair where his overcoat was and began to put it on. The people still sat motionless. He looked out over the audience, saying. "What are you waiting for, the benediction? There will be no benediction tonight. The meeting's over."

He bundled himself into his overcoat and made for a side door.

The great throng stirred themselves and arose slowly With few exceptions all were somewhat surprised at the kind of sermon the evangelist had given, but the impression he made on the vast majority of his hearers was good.

"Billy's all right," said one old man to a neighbor as they walked along the sawdust aisle

"You bet he is," was the prompt response This greeting and answer could be heard all over the crowd.

At the close of the meeting Allan Rutledge met George Caldwell for a moment.

"What did you think of Mr Sunday?" asked the minister.

"He is just the leader we needed in Bronson," responded the young man earnestly. "I am sorry neither Mr. Graham nor Roland Gregory was out tonight. I think if they knew the good that Mr. Sunday can do us they would not be so bitter against him."

Allan Rutledge shook his head sadly "I am afraid their prejudice will keep them from even listening to Mr Sunday It is too bad"

Allan Rutledge also spoke to Reginald Nelson as the city reporter of the Courier was gathering up his notes.

"Did you get a good report of the meeting tonight?" asked Dr Rutledge

"Watch for tomorrow's Courier," answered Reginald, with enthusiasm. "This series of meetings will be the making of our paper Our city subscriptions have increased by the hundred since we announced our purpose to devote a large amount of space to the Sunday meetings and we have had large numbers of new subscribers from all parts of the country Mr Sunday is quite an American institution I can see."

Members Grow Bitter on Liquor Question

At Harrisburg yesterday over the Governor's pet measure, a feeling of bitterness towards the governor featured the four-hour oratorical battle preceeding the roll call. Members of his own party, resenting the methods the Governor employed to secure support and his alleged disposition to interfere with the legislative function, charged him with having employed coercion, with having wielded the patronage club and even of deception and ingratitude. Bomb after bomb, loaded with sarcasm, was fired at the executive, indicating that the House has "gone along" with him until this time under pressure.

Now that the bill is out of the way, the work of the Legislature will really begin. Local option has clogged the whole law-making machinery. Every other important subject has been handled with particular reference to the effect it would have upon local option. In a statement he issued last night, the governor indicated a fear that a fight may be made upon his child labor bill, which he has demanded shall be passed as it was introduced and upon other of his program measures.

And there seems to be a general understanding that the Republican leaders shall now assert themselves. It is pointed out that the governor has been given unlimited rein since he forced Ambler into the speaker's chair, and that his sway has been complete. With the assistance of the "organization" leaders the railroads that materially assisted in the last campaign have been satisfied by action on the full crew repealer

The liquor interests that earnestly supported the Republican ticket last November are undoubtedly satisfied with today's developments and now it is reported that the organization will see to it that the manufacturers and business interests of the state are protected against drastic provisions of child labor and workman's compensation bills and against the enactment of proposed revenue raising legislation that would impose additional penalties upon the corporate interests.

ONCE MONESSEN MAN KILLED

J. K. Fisher, aged 53, a prominent citizen and well known liveryman of Latrobe, was killed shortly after four o'clock Monday afternoon, when his automobile turned turtle while descending a hill on the Latrobe-Derry brick road.

For a time Mr. Fisher was in business in Monessen with W. S. Moore, and many local people knew him well.

Vaughn, his four old son, and the only other occupant of the car, escaped without a scratch. With remarkable presence of mind, the child walked across the railroad tracks to the nearest house and said between sobs, to the first man he saw, who happened to be Charles Fritz, "come down, papa is under the automobile."

Fritz accompanied the lad to the base of the hill where the machine had left the road and plunged over a steep embankment. Fisher's body was pinned under the wreckage. He was dead when found.

Fisher leaves a wife and five children. He had been to Latrobe and was on his way home when the unfortunate accident occurred. He had made the trip many times before, having driven the same machine for almost a year.

Child Hit By Automobile

A. W. Davis of the Page mill, had the misfortune to strike a little girl with his automobile while driving along Schoonmaker near Oneida street last evening. Three children were playing in the street when Annie Fright of Seneca street, darted in front of the machine. She was knocked down and bruised up a little. Mr. Davis was going about three or four miles an hour and fortunately stopped his car almost instantly, picked the child up and drove to a doctor's office where an examination was made to find that the wounds were only of a mild nature. She was then taken to her home badly frightened but not badly hurt.

A Very Nice Compliment

The Latrobe Bulletin speaking of the appearance of Lawrence Moore before an audience of that town says:

"Great interest was manifested, especially among the younger folks with whom he used to go to public school, in the presence of Mr Lawrence E. Moore of Monessen, and a welcoming wave of applause came from the audience as the young man whose voice has elected the praise of city critics stepped upon the stage.

"He sang 'The Bandolero' by Leslie Stuart as his first number, and as his strong and deep tones found their way through the big auditorium, the audience found itself listening with a mixture of wonder and delight—wonder over the fact that one who had been a mere youngster five years ago could have developed so powerful a voice, and delight over the fine singing that was being heard. And when he rendered 'The Big Bass Viol" both the wonder and the delight grew.

"He sang with power and with expression, his tones being full of volume and of good range, and his enunciation was clear and distinct. The audience thoroughly enjoyed each of the four selections he gave."

Wrong Mrs Bonini Named Yesterday

Wrong information given yesterday led this paper to state that Mrs. Frank Bonini had become hysterical in a local church and had to be removed to the hospital. This item should have stated that the lady is Mrs. Mary Bonini, wife of Ben Bonini. We gladly make this correction to set the families right.

The woman is still at the hospital in a badly delirious state of mind There is practically no change since she was admitted to the institution yesterday.

Sold at Constable Sale

The Lindh institute in the Barker building was sold this morning at constables sale by A. J. Smith. It was the property of Mrs. Miller and was sold for rent and to satisfy other claims. The price paid was $250.00 and there was a rent bill alone of $285 00 John Lindh, the former owner, was the purchaser. Mr. Lindh took charge of the place at once and has workmen busy cleaning it up ready to reopen his massage institute. He will conduct a strictly up-to-date place and expects to open April 28th. Mr. Lindh had negotiated for the place at private sale, but feared trouble over debts that were outstanding. The title through constables sale protects him.
